PRESIDENT PRAYS FOR PEACE AT UNKNOWN'S BIER

Commits Government to Supreme Effort to Bring Concord Out of Conference That Begins Saturday.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Amphitheatre, Arlington, Va., Nov. 11.—On this hallowed ground, where the American hero died, President Harding today gave solemn promise to the nation and to the world that the "sacrifice of the millions dead shall not be in vain."

"There must be, there shall be, the commanding voice of a copacious civilization against armed warfare," the president said. He spoke across the flag-draped bier of the unknown soldier, buried here with regal honors, not alone to the representative of America's people, but to the highest emissaries of the world's great powers, gathered here on the eve of the conference called to stem the tide of future wars.

To the defenders who survive, to mothers who sorrow, to widows and children who mourn, the president voiced the prayer "that no such sacrifice shall be asked again."

As though looking into the faces of children who mourn, the president's eyes swept across the slopes, where multitudes of tiny headstones rose in numberless rows, and echoed "the prayers of all people that this armistice day shall mark the beginning of a new and lasting era of peace on earth, good will among men."

"I speak not as a pacifist fearing war," the president said, "but as one who loves justice and hates war. I speak as one who believes the highest function of government is to give its citizens the security of peace, the opportunity to achieve, and the pursuit of happiness."

"The loftiest tribute we can bestow today—the heroically earned tribute—fashioned in deliberate conviction, out of unclouded thoughts, neither shadowed by remorse nor made vain by fancies, is the commitment of this republic to an advance never made before. If American achievement is a cherished pride at home, if our unselfishness among nations is all we wish it to be and ours is a helpful example in the world then let us give of our influence and strength, yes, of our aspirations and convictions, to put mankind on a little higher plane, exulting and exalting, with war's distressing and depressing tragedies barred from the stage of righteous civilization."

"He died unquestioning, uncompromising, with faith in his heart and hope on his lips, that his country should triumph and its civilization survive," the president said in simple eulogy of the soldier dead. "He believed his to be a service destined to change the tide of human affairs and his patriotism was none less if he craved more than triumph of country, rather it was greater if he hoped for victory for all human kind, he cherished our national rights and abhorred the threat of armed domination; and in the maelstrom of destruction and suffering he fired his shot for liberation of the captive conscience of the world."

"I can sense the prayers of our people," the president said, "in closing 'all peoples, that this Armistice Day shall mark the beginning of a new era of peace on earth, let us join in this prayer.'"

Bowing his head above the bier of the unknown hero, the chief executive led the distinguished assemblage in the simple supplication of The Lord's Prayer.

Dr. Saragovitch's Next Sermon.

On Sunday night Dr. Saragovitch will continue his series of dramatic lectures, "The Story of the Christian Church," at the St. James Methodist Church (the St. James Church). The subject will be "The Americanization of Edward Bok."

Professor Phelps of Yale recently declared in this city that this book is one of the biggest things of the kind that has been given to the American public in years. It is a book that should be in the hands of all our youth. The preacher on Sunday night will tell the story of the struggles and success of young Bok. Professor Saragovitch, however, will sing Bok's "If God So Willeth the Grace."

Choral Society Organized.

At the close of the prayer meeting in the West Street Baptist Church Thursday evening, it was decided to organize a Choral Society to meet once a week during the winter, under the direction of the Rev. R. F. Ingersoll, the pastor of the church. A committee, consisting of Miss Helen Frew, Miss Beatrice Elton and Charles Broadhead, was appointed to take the names of those who wish to join and arrange for a future meeting. Between 20 and 40 names were secured by Thursday evening. Anyone who sings or who has a voice and would like the chance to sing in church is invited to join.

Warrior With Cannon Team.

Dr. Wacker of Troy, New York, has secured a contract to play with the Cannon team this season. He will also act as captain and will be in the lineup against Arroyo, San Francisco. Wacker is the Harvard basketball star, coaching the university last season and organizing a team, which represented Ohio in the first time in sixteen years.

Home to Elder Cook.

The Local Friends Aid Society will hold a dance at the Elks Club Hall, Tuesday, November 15, with music by Butler's orchestra.

ARMISTICE DAY AT ST. MARY'S

Special Prayer By Archbishop Hayes Is Read Invoking Divine Aid For Delegates To Arms Conference.

Impressive Armistice Day services were held at St. Mary's Church today, beginning at 11:45 o'clock. A feature of the service was a special prayer composed by Archbishop Hayes and ordered by him to be offered in all the Catholic Churches of the Archdiocese. The prayer was as follows:

O Heavenly Father, from Whom are holy desires, right counsels, and just works, give to Thy people that peace which the world cannot give; so that, with our hearts dedicated to Thy commandments, the times may be, by Thy protection more securely peaceable.

O God, Who dost not permit the nations who believe in Thee to lose courage or to overcome by the terrors and horrors of a world war, vouchsafe to accept the prayers of Thy devoted people, this moment mindful of the sacrifice of our heroic dead; that the peace conferred by Thy mercy may make our beloved country safe from every evil of soul and body.

O God, Author and Lover of peace, to know Whom is to live; to serve Whom is to reign; protect Thy children from foe without and enemy within; that we who confide in Thy mighty defense may neither fear hostile arms nor forge them unjustly for the conquest of others.

May Thy Divine Son, the Prince of Peace, bless with His presence and guide with His wisdom the deliberations of the forthcoming Conference on Armament, and unite all mankind and all nations in the bonds of God-fearing justice, fraternal charity and mutual helpfulness. Amen.

Appropriate hymns were sung by the church choir and at noon the congregation offered silent prayers for the prescribed two minutes. The Rev. Dean Hickey delivered a brief comment on the significance of the day. The services closed with the Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. A very large number attended the solemn services, the church being unable to seat them.

MARBLE CAUSES DEATH OF CHILD

Two Year Old Newburgh Girl Swallows Playing and Strangles—Father Removes Marble, but Not in Time.

Annie, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carmine Esposito, died from strangulation Wednesday afternoon about 2 o'clock, as the result of swallowing a marble picked up on the floor of the living room at 176 Renwick street, Newburgh. While the mother was attending to her duties about the home, Annie amused herself playing about the room. Suddenly one of the children in the household called the attention of Mrs. Esposito to the strange actions of the little girl who was apparently troubled with something in her throat and unable to utter a cry or word.

Alarmed, the mother endeavored to relieve the child, and summoned Mr. Esposito, who conducted a barber shop in the building. He picked up the helpless little one, by both feet, after he had been hurriedly told of the incident, and giving the child an heroic shaking forced open her mouth and with his forefinger succeeded in removing the marble that had been the cause of the trouble.

In the meantime medical aid had been summoned from St. Luke's Hospital, but the child's breath had ceased off sufficiently long to cause death.

His Husband Arrested.

Andrew Kraus who lives in the town of Ulster was arrested Thursday evening by Deputy Sheriff Anderson Ellsworth, on a warrant obtained by Mrs. Kraus, his wife, who charges her husband with disorderly conduct in threatening to beat her. Kraus was lodged in the county jail overnight and today taken before Justice of the Peace Carr for trial, when the case was adjourned until Tuesday morning.

Miss Joyce At Washington.

Miss Julia P. Joyce of No. 55 East Chester street, this city, is a member of the delegation of the Overseas Post American Legion, to attend the burial services for American unknown hero at Washington.

Miss Joyce is a graduate of Bellevue hospital, New York city and served with the U. S. Navy Hospital, No. 1, A. E. F., for a year and a half.

Lloyd Turns Down Tax.

Taxpayers of the town of Lloyd at the general election on Tuesday turned down the proposition to expend the sum of $4,000 for the improvement and repair of the road from the residence of Thomas Lloyd to the school house of District No. 1 of that town. The amount was to have been raised from the town next year.

Not Worth Seeking Here.

James S. Kite, 3 years old, of Canastota, was killed Wednesday by a train while attempting to cross a trestle on the railroad track of the New York Central.

President Harding placing a ribbon about the flag-draped coffin of the Unknown American hero, lying in state in the rotunda of the Capitol. As the flag of the Capitol dropped to halfmast the casket was carried up the steps to the rotunda, where it was placed on the simple catafalque on which is the same spot the bodies of Presidents Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley rested in state.

WAR DEAD TRIBUTE OF NATION IS MOST MAJESTIC WASHINGTON HAS EVER WITNESSED

Caisson Bearing Typical Hero's Body Is Followed To Arlington By Greatest Men of U. S. and Other Nations—Unknown Is Interred With Highest Honors Ever Paid Any American—Wilson Reappears and Is Cheered.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 11.—A tribute more mighty and more majestic than was ever accorded any citizen of the Republic, whatever his rank or station, was paid by a grateful nation today to its unknown war dead.

While the nation stood silent in its reverence, here in Washington they prepared a kingly burial for a modest patriot who gave his all that the Republic might survive.

From beneath the great white dome of the Capitol where he lay all of yesterday, receiving the reverent homage of thousands, the body of this unknown American soldier was taken this morning almost before the chill November sun had straggled up through the autumnal haze.

The procession that silently followed the shiny black caisson to the crypt at Arlington Cemetery included all the notables that make up the government at the capital, representatives of high rank from all countries of the world, as well as from all sections of the United States and made up a pageant of reverence that has never been equaled in Washington.

The silence of the crowds was marked.

When the head of the procession reached the Aqueduct Bridge over the Potomac river at Georgetown the last of the marching column was just passing the White House.

Woodrow Wilson, feeble and emaciated, emerged from his street retirement to participate in the parade and the only applause of the day was for the former president. Accompanied by his wife he rode in the only horse-drawn vehicle of the procession in a section designated for private citizens, having refused to ride in the honored place reserved for him. He was assisted to enter and leave his carriage and looked on and smiled as the thousands along the curb took up the cheering when he approached.

Many times the crowd started to applaud the president and General Pershing as they passed immediately in the rear of the caisson, but each time both lifted warning hands and the crowd became quiet.

Amphitheatre, Arlington, Va., November 11.—On the crest of a little sun swept hill overlooking the placid Potomac, reverent hands laid to his last long rest today, an American soldier who shall be forever nameless.

Grouped about the simple stone sarcophagus that received the remains of him who dared and died on a foreign field, stood the statesmen of the world to mourn him. With sorrowing eyes, mindful, perhaps of the millions of their own heroic dead, they looked on as the caisson, wrapped only in a glorious mantle of his country, slipped silently to its final resting place. Above the caisson of dry autumn leaves and the caisson of a great crowd, rose the voice of a great crowd, the familiar voice of the A. E. F., intoning the familiar words that have accompanied countless thousands of soldiers to their last sleep.

"O God, for as much as this, our brother, unknown and yet well known, has poured out his life for freedom's cause at his country's call, we therefore commend his soul to God, and commit his body to the ground, earth to earth, ashes to ashes, dust to dust, in sure and certain hope of the resurrection into eternal life, through our Lord Jesus Christ."

Out beyond the spot where this simple patriot was buried in a kingly grave, and standing majestically in the chill November sun, rose the monuments which a grateful nation erected to the memory of Washington, the father, and Lincoln, the emancipator.

Behind the quiet grave, now on view, stretched away the white stone that mark the thousands who preceded him in death that America might live. It was a distinguished company that gathered about the bier of an unknown American soldier to do him final honor. It is a company no less distinguished that reposes about him in last sleep.

The nation has paid homage to its many heroes before. Generals returning from victorious wars, have been thunderously acclaimed, admirals who won great sea victories have been received with the deafening applause of multitudes and then followed to their graves by sorrowing thousands. But never has there been a tribute so solemn in its grandeur, so majestic in its simplicity, as that paid this nameless American soldier today.

From coast to coast, from north to south, the nation stood silent in its honor. A president of the United States, two former presidents, and the representatives of kings and emperors followed his body to its grave. The statesmen of Europe and Asia joined with America in a mutuality of sorrow and reverence.

And behind these, in sorrowful procession, walked the highest officers of the land for which he died—members of the cabinet, justices of the supreme court, ambassadors, senators and representatives, generals and admirals, resident in their gold braid and decorations, governors of states. And still further behind—yet more powerful than all of these—stalked the majesty of a free and untrammelled American citizenship to "mark him to his grave."

The great white marble amphitheatre, shining frostily in the feeble sun, presented a scene of unforgettable beauty and splendor when the services opened.

The apse which held the body was a glorious mass of flowers. They came from the far ends of the earth in tribute to America's nameless hero—roses from England, lilies from France—blossoms from everywhere.

Behind this mass of fragrance and color gleamed the brilliant uniforms and court trappings of the representatives of the great powers of the earth.

Oriental splendor of dress mingled with occidental in a profusion of color.

Beatty, the hero of Jutland, rubbed elbows with Briand, the premier of France. Diaz, who saved Italy at the Piave, stood beside the glittering generals and admirals from the Far East.

The shiny black caisson, bearing the remains, drew up before the marble entrance sharply at 11:20 a. m. The body bearers stepped forward as the marine band broke softly forth into the solemn beauty of "Chopin's Funeral March." The audience stood unmoved as the stately medal of honor men, with slow and solemn tread, bore their burden through the west entrance and around the right colonnade to the flower covered apse. It was preceded only by the clergy and choir and followed by the pall bearers.

The choir, robed in black and white, sang "The Song of God Goes Forth to War" during the solemn procession around the colonnade.

The sound of their voices, rising strongly and beautifully, floated into the thousands who, unable to gain admission to the amphitheatre, stood in reverence in a great circle, for hundreds of yards beyond the marble edifice.

As the music died away over the brown Virginia hills, Col. John T. Axron, chief of chaplains, stepped forward and raised his hand. His voice, pronouncing the invocation, rang loudly through the chilly air.

"Almighty God, our Gracious Father," he said, "in sympathy and trust we seek the blessing. Help us fittingly to honor our unknown soldiers who gave their all in laying sure foundations of international commonwealth."

Hardly had he finished when the clear, silvery notes of the bugle sounded "attention."

Then a stillness more profound than all that had gone before settled over the assemblage. It was death like. Even the dry autumn leaves, and the birds seemed stilled in the trees that stood sentinel like about the circular enclosure.

The Marine Band broke the awful stillness at 12:02 by pealing forth into "America." The audience stood unmoved and joined in the grand old hymn.

As the music died away again, Secretary of War Weeks, stepped forward to speak. As he finished the president stepped up behind the caisson. A hush fell over the audience. There across the body of America's nameless dead, the president voiced the nation's determination that this soldier shall not have died in vain.

Even the cold marble that formed the archway under which the president spoke, carried the same message, for chiseled there in letters a foot high were these words:

"We here highly resolve that these honored dead shall not have died in vain."

The president spoke rapidly. When he finished a mighty volume of sound floated out through the portals:

"Our Father, Who art in Heaven—"

Then off in the wings the Metropolitan Opera quartet took up the hymn, "The Supreme Sacrifice."

Silence again settled over those assembled as Secretary of War Weeks silently handed to the president America's highest decorations for bravery and valor—the Congressional Medal and the D. S. C. One on each side of the little bridge that divided the caisson, the president placed them, and then silently stepped to his seat. Then up stepped Lt. Gen. Jacques, whose heroic little army of Belgians retarded the German progress at Ypres and Amiens. From his own breast he drew Belgium's "Croix de Guerre" and placed it on the coffin.

There was a click of heels as the Belgian general stepped into salute to America's dead.

Beatty, who defeated the German fleet at Jutland, then stepped forward, trim and jaunty in his tight fitting blue naval uniform. The primed Victoria Cross, for which hundreds of men have fought and died, was placed there on the bier of the unknown private soldier. The Earl of Cavan, the personal representative of the King of England, read the citation.

PATRIOTIC ORGANIZATIONS AT HOLY CROSS ARMISTICE DAY SERVICE

Father Mabry's Sermon Draws Lessons of Late Conflict and Voices Hope for Success of Arms Conference—Catafalque Adds to Solemnity.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Kingston's chief Armistice Day service was held at the Church of the Holy Cross this morning, its pastor, the Rev. Father Gregory Mabry, state chaplain of the American Legion, preaching the sermon.

Reverence and solemnity characterized the entire service, the tribute to America's war dead being carried out with a detail which again kindled in many breasts the strong emotions of war years, when no news of loved ones so often proved to be bad news and tears glistened in eyes of many to whom sons are but memories.

A catafalque, set up in front of the Rood Screen in the church, typified the tragedy of war. It was covered with an American flag and on it rested a war worn helmet and the crossed palms of victory. A beautiful silk American flag and the church agreed to limit armaments. And he added these searching words:

"The responsibility is entirely upon the professing Christians of the United States. If another war like the last should come, they will be responsible for every drop of blood that will be shed, and for every dollar wastefully expended."

The distinguished editor of The World newspaper, Frank I. Cobb, in pleading that the nations should rid themselves of competitive armaments, the cost of which is rapidly becoming a prohibitive tax upon the labor and capital of the world, adds these significant words:

"To ask whether the Christian church has a duty to perform in such circumstances is to ask whether it has any interest whatever in the fate of civilization or whether it regards itself merely as a passive spectator to the tragedy that is unfolding before it."

If the churches by reason of apathy and indifference are to confess that they are destitute of leadership in the new crisis that arises, what leadership is left to them?

Let us therefore meet our responsibility and get at the root of the matter. I am not here to discuss the academic question, 'Is War Ever Justifiable?' nor to enlarge upon the economic waste of war in the destruction of life, property and the means of production. They are proper questions for the public forum. We are of course, interested in economics, but they are not our primary interest.

We are here as Christian men and women, gathered for worship in a Christian Church, citizens of a Christian country, a Republic founded and cradled in the fear of God.

We call the Incarnate Christ Lord and Master. His will is our law and we are solemnly committed to carry out His purposes for men. Our primary law is the Christian law:

Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it: Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. On these two commandments hang all the Law and the Prophets.

The Christian law is the law of love, and war is the law of hate. We plead sometimes that war brings out the fine qualities of courage, self-sacrifice and contempt of death. That may be true, but no one would seriously argue that war is necessary to develop those qualities.

They are the gifts of the grace of Him who was the apostle and exemplar of love and who made the supreme sacrifice that men might live.

An offensive war is the product of hatred or of economic competition—sometimes both. And both shamelessly violate the teaching of Jesus and thwart the will and purpose of the Prince of Peace. As Christian men and women we must admit that the spirit of war is contrary to the spirit of Christ.

On Earth Peace.

In the light of that take your toll of the recent war, remembering that the half can never be told. Ten million men killed; five million men permanently disabled; and all of them the flower of the young manhood of Europe and America! Add to that the destruction of 350 billions worth of property. Add again, the devastated and darkened homes; the savagery, brutality, the hatred, the lust for killing and the women and girls scarred as with a hot iron by the desire of men flaming with passion kindled by war. Add once again, the thing which hurts us even to think of—the effect of fighting upon those engaged in the conflict. Read such books as Sir Philip Gibbs' "Now It Can Be Told," and pray God that never again such scenes may have to descend into such a hell.

And what have we to show for it all? An enemy crippled but unrepentant; in the hour of defeat laying plans for another war. The Allies trembling upon the verge of bankruptcy; nations suspicious of nations; business discouraged where it is not paralyzed; taxation crushing out the heart of enterprise; social unrest and strife of class as well as the world has never before witnessed and statesmen trembling for the fear of the things coming on the earth.

Nor is that all. The world is yet to be told. We said we fought to end the war. And it is so. But we must face the fact that already the nations are engaged in fearful competition to increase their armaments and devour more death and destruction means of wholesale slaughter. And the United States of America is one of them. Face facts. We have just emerged from a war which cost us the lives of 700,000 men and our best brains are at work preparing for another war. Twenty-three per cent of the Federal appropriations in 1920 went for armaments and future wars, and the secretary of the navy is calling for the largest navy in the world. What a satire upon civilization! General Pershing recently said:

The optimism recently presented to our Congress for the naval and military services contemplated an appropriation for the next fiscal year of more than $5,000,000 for every working day in the year.

It is a gloomy commentary upon world conditions that expect these colossal sums to be spent upon peace time armaments.

Let us therefore meet our responsibility and get at the root of the matter. I am not here to discuss the academic question, 'Is War Ever Justifiable?' nor to enlarge upon the economic waste of war in the destruction of life, property and the means of production. They are proper questions for the public forum. We are of course, interested in economics, but they are not our primary interest.

We are here as Christian men and women, gathered for worship in a Christian Church, citizens of a Christian country, a Republic founded and cradled in the fear of God.

BRITISH GRAB
GERMAN IDEASSecrets From Surrendered Planes
Used in New Craft.

ENGINES NOW ARE GROUPED

Altitude and Speed Are Sacrificed to the Handling of Explosives—Strong Tendency to Keep to the Single Engine Type for Commercial Machines—Two-Engine Machines Fall in Ministry Trials—Handley-Page Alone Went Through Satisfactorily.

The new airplane building at the Bristol Aeroplane company, writes Miss C. C. Turner in the London Daily Telegraph, is the latest expression of a method evolved by the Germans during the war, with a view to long-distance bombing. Instead of the engines being separated from each other in the wings of the machine, as they are in most airplanes with two or more engines, they are grouped in one engine room in the body, driving one, two or more propellers through shafting and gears.

Among the surrendered German airplanes were several examples illustrating this method. A feature of these designs was the low power, as compared with British machines: a German four-engine machine seldom had greater power than 1,000 horsepower, whereas a British four-engine type usually had half as much again. The gears of the German machines were heavy. The engineer, standing in the engine room, where four engines were grouped in two tiers, was in the middle of a maze of cylinders, rods and tubing, and must have worked in extremely distressing conditions. At great expenditure of fuel such machines were designed to carry a big load of bombs, but unless the return journey was to be left very much to chance the distance of the objective could be little greater than that attainable by two-engine machines.

These machines would hardly be suitable for commercial purposes.

Big Lead in Center.

Much is to be said for the grouping of the principal lead at the center, for its separation to the right and left, as in most two-engine types, is apt to prove embarrassing in the case of one engine failing. The advantages of the group system include that of reduced head resistance as compared with exposing each engine to the air separately. The accessibility of the engines during flight is an important advantage. The gearing of the propellers is also valuable, but full advantage cannot be taken of it until propellers of variable pitch are used.

The massing of the engines in the body will be detrimental to the comfort of passengers, unless cabins are provided elsewhere. A disadvantage of the group system is the enormous weight at the center, which seems likely to call for increased weight of wings or a strict limit to the span from left to right. This may, however, be partly counteracted by adopting the triplane or quadplane system (as in the new Bristol), which, on the other hand, has its own disadvantages.

The altitude capacity and the speed of the big German machines were low, but doubtless at the present time a considerable improvement in these respects is possible. The landing of such machines is apt to be difficult on account of their great weight and they must have airfields of hard surface.

The two-engine airplane is a peculiar class, inasmuch as the contingency of one engine failing leaves it with only half its power but all its weight, and the half of its power exerted at a thrust point away from the center, with the result that a turning tendency has to be overcome.

Failed in Trials.

For the reasons mentioned the two-engine machines engaged in the Air Ministry competition last year, with one exception, failed in trials in which one or the other of the engines had to be stopped. These trials included getting up in a limited space and maneuvering in the air. It was instructive to note that the one machine that went through satisfactorily was the Handley-Page W-8, which was driven by engines giving more power in relation to the total weight of the machine than its competitors. In its case there were only 11 1/4 pounds to the horsepower, whereas the nearest of the others had no less than 15 1/2 pounds to the horsepower. Thus the W-8, even with one engine idle, had a load power ratio not much higher than that of a single engine machine.

The Farman Goliath is a comparatively low-powered two-engine machine and its construction has brought out practically the same machine driven by three engines, with a view to overcoming its drawbacks.

The present situation is that, for commercial machines, there is a strong tendency to keep to the single engine type.

Pigeon and Crane.

Playing the piano on an accompaniment to a number seems to be the outstanding innovation of the year in our two critical circles.

It was done in the Wade case in Bridgeport, and now comes the charge it was reported in the Eagle case. Which would seem to prove conclusively that piano is getting on as right as an eagle as they used to be.—New York Globe.

Romance of Paper.

When our reporters were reviewing the Chicago news reading books printed on paper shipped from the base of the military zone or of business papers the News introduced paper in the Twentieth century two spots.

STUNTS DAUNT PASSENGER

Pilot Obliges When Asked to Display His Skill.

Airplane passengers sometimes hear some remarks, remarks of London Daily News, aviation correspondent, referring to the following incident, referring to the following incident: A passenger was flying from Berlin to Amsterdam en route for London, the pilot being one of our best aviators. As the passenger had flown many times before, he thought he would like to stunt, and requested the pilot to show him what he could do.

As a result, the airplane climbed until the air became almost too thin to breathe and then descended to a lower atmosphere in a succession of the most appalling stunts imaginable, the machine being made to do every possible thing that any airplane had ever achieved.

This proved too much for the passenger, and on arrival at Amsterdam he cancelled the rest of the flight to London and traveled by boat and train. He has, however, since recovered, and has taken to the air once more.

Will Remain Single to Inherit Farm. Miss Lulu Clark, of Edward, Ill., is willing to remain single until she is 30 years old, to accept the gift of a 100-acre farm in Iowa from an elderly friend who desires to make her a present. This was the condition he made and she accepted it. Miss Clark is about 26 years old.

Cow Derails Train.

A Missouri Pacific passenger train was derailed near Elmore, Ark., when the engine struck a cow and threw the animal against a switch stand, the impact opening the switch sufficiently to derail the first nine cars. Several passengers were injured.

When Ladies Were Masked.

Ladies of quality originally wore masks either to protect their complexions from the burning sun or out of modesty to prevent them from being recognized while out of doors.

Is Your Appetite Uncertain—Your Digestion Impaired?

WHY THE FOOD WE EAT MAY FAIL TO KEEP US FIT

ONE single food element essential to health! We now know that many of our inefficiencies and failures are really due to lack of a health-maintaining element in food—the water-soluble vitamin. Scientists are agreed that without this one food factor we lose appetite and weight and fall off in health.

This is why thousands of men and women who are eating otherwise good and wholesome meals find their energy and vigor slipping. And this is also why many have little appetite and remain in a state of lowered vitality.

Today Fleischmann's Yeast is recommended as a corrective food for overcoming these difficulties, for Fleischmann's Yeast has been discovered to be a rich source of the essential vitamin we need throughout life.

Fleischmann's Yeast is a wholesome, fresh food, assimilated like any other food. Eat it at any time, 2 to 3 cakes a day. You will like its fresh, distinctive flavor and the clean taste it leaves in your mouth.

Have it on the table at home and try it as a sandwich filler or spread on crackers. Have it at your office and eat it at your desk. It is good in milk, and many like it just plain. If troubled with gas dissolve it first in very hot water. This does not affect the efficacy of the yeast. Place a standing order with your grocer for Fleischmann's Yeast and get it fresh daily.

Send 4c in stamps for the booklet, "The New Importance of Yeast in Diet." So many inquiries are coming in daily for this booklet that it is necessary to make this nominal charge to cover cost of handling and mailing. Address The Fleischmann Company, 701 Washington Street, New York, N. Y.

THE NEED FOR SCIENTIFICALLY TESTED YEAST

Fresh yeast has been proved by recent scientific tests to be a valuable food for correcting run-down condition, constipation, indigestion and certain skin disorders. These original tests were all made with Fleischmann's Yeast. Beware of untested yeast-vitamin preparations that contain drugs or other mixtures. Fleischmann's Yeast (fresh) is a pure food, rich in vitamin, in which it measures up to the high standards set by laboratories and hospitals. The familiar tin-tin package with the yellow label is the only form in which Fleischmann's Yeast for Health is sold.

DEATH DANCE

IS REVIVED AT LINDSEY

or Relief Is Shown on Faces as the Weird Music
Is Played.

A revival of the ancient custom of dancing the "death dance" took place in the Church of St. Andrews, at Lindsey, recently. A visitor describing his experiences of it says: "On entering the church, the dim light, I noted mysterious light gleams from the gallery, while soft music was played. The curtains had hidden the gallery were drawn aside, and the old building, with its carvings dating from the thirteenth century, was lit up by a cold blue light. The music ceased and then a tall, gaunt, ghostly figure playing a flute was seen. "The death dance" had a prehistoric origin, the players clad in medieval dress. Holding the procession were the emperor and empress, the cardinal, the aristocrat, the doctor, the warrior, the monk, the peasant and the mother with her child. The procession mounted the gallery and disappeared in the dark. "The death flute" ceased its weird music and Death ordered the emperor and then the remainder of the procession before the tribune, and commanded them all, irrespective of position. Death then danced with them, the dancers showing their terror or relief in various movements. The shrill accompaniment of a violin broke the silence. Finally Death convulsively tipped the child, the music became more wild, till at last the organ broke into a crash of chords, the playing stopped and the church was again flooded with light."

WAR WIDOWS RE-WED EASILY

Husbands More Readily Than Do the Girls in France.

The woman with an apartment, preferably a furnished one, is most in demand as a fiancée, says the Minister in an account of an interview with the manager of a Paris matrimonial agency characterized as one of the best in the city.

The war widow, if young and agreeable, remarries much more easily than a young girl making her first venture into matrimony.

A physician between the ages of thirty and forty, well educated and of good physique, was called the first prize among men. Parents demanded engineers, architects, professors or lawyers for their daughters' husbands, while the girls themselves wished none other than an artist, but the latter were reported to be home again as extremely rare.

The fortunes offered with the French women varied from $5,000 to $20,000. The director of the agency stated that he had arranged a marriage between an engineer and a country girl who the bride brought 400,000 francs to her husband.

Daughters of rich peasants who have retired and wished to live in town formed the largest clientele of the bureau, in which the woman applicants outnumbered the men two or three to one.

MR MOTORS ANNOY CATTLE

Unlucky Penn. Adjunct to Flying
Field May Have to Be Moved.

Nevada cattle have not yet become used to airplanes, so the Southern Pacific may have to move its shipping base at Elko, Nevada, whence thousands of head start for market.

The pens are adjacent to the landing of the United States air mail service and the cattle, raised on the mountains and having never seen a plane, would when the big flyers came swooping down. The two-inch planks of which the pens are made hardly restrain the frantic animals.

The greatest trouble is experienced when new birds are being driven to the same time that a huge motor bus comes roaring from the sky. Little once inside the pens usually become accustomed to the noise in a few days.

TREASURE HOARD IS FOUND

Big Up Gold and Diamonds Hidden
From British in 1776.

Col. John W. Homan of Staten Island, New York, was enriched recently by a hoard of gold and diamonds buried during the Revolutionary war by his grandfather, who feared they might be seized by British troops. Colonel Homan's grandfather died without revealing the hiding place of the treasure. It was found by workmen excavating for a cellar. Colonel Homan declined to estimate the value of the hoard until he had the diamonds valued by experts.

England Needs More Hens.
England needs 2,000,000 more hens in order to get back to the estimated consumption for 1910 of 120 eggs for each person, reports Edward Brown, secretary of the National Poultry Council, of England. He compares the per capita consumption in England last year with 1910.

Widow Got $1,000 Staked for Cup.
Rochester robbed Edward Homan of $1,000, of the $2,000 he had staked to carry Miss Phyllis Owen. It was his ten years to carry the money, but he failed with his horses at the end of the rubber. Homan then lost his stake.

Shopping on Wedding Cakes.

The exact origin of the custom of giving a piece of wedding cake to each guest has been traced back to early Roman and is found not only in England, but in almost all European countries.

edged necessary, especially when the most rigid economy in governmental administration is essential if we would avoid national bankruptcy.

We protested against the use of poisonous gases on the battle front but we are experimenting to produce gases more deadly than was ever dreamed of in France and Flanders.

Capt. Bradner, chief of research of the Chemical Warfare Service, said at a Congressional hearing:

One plane carrying 2 tons of the liquid (of a certain new chemical) could cover an area 100 feet wide by 7 miles long and deposit enough material to kill every man in the area by action on his skin. It would be entirely possible for this country to manufacture several thousand tons daily. If Germany had had 4,000 tons of this material and 400 aeroplanes equipped, the entire first American army would have been annihilated in ten or twelve hours.

We are not alone. Every other country tells the same tale. People taxed beyond bearing that armies and navies may be increased and machines organized for deadly destruction of human life. This thing must stop.

Here is a picture drawn by a celebrated correspondent who was at the front on Christmas eve, 1915:

I heard no carols in the trenches on Christmas eve in 1915, but afterward, when I sat with a pint of water in each of my top-boots, among a company of men who were wet to the knees—a friend of mine raised his hand and said, "Listen! Through the open door came the music of a mouth organ, and it was playing an old tune:

God rest ye, merry gentlemen.
Let nothing you dismay.
For Jesus Christ, our Saviour
Was born on Christmas Day.

Outside the wind was howling across Flanders with a doleful whine, rising now and then into a savage violence which rattled the window-panes, and beyond the booming of its lower notes was the faint, dull rumble of distant guns.

"Christmas Eve!" said an officer. "Nineteen hundred and fifteen years ago—and now—this!"

Pray God this world may never see another Christmas like that. An English staff officer of high rank was walking over a battlefield "with the smell of human corruption about him, and men crouched in chalky ditches below their breast-works of sandbags," and he turned to a colleague and said in a startled way:

"This must never happen again! Never!"

It must not, and the first step in the long way to peace on earth is the United States taking the lead in the calling of a conference of the great nations that there may be an agreement on the part of all to limit armaments. Though it would be a magnificent act of faith, perhaps we can hardly expect one nation alone to limit its armaments, but there is much reason that many do welcome the step for a general limitation of armaments.

Paul Cravath recently said:

The United States could perform no greater service to the world than successfully to lead a nation-wide movement for a radical reduction in armaments. There is no better time to begin such a movement than now. Now that the most devastating war in history has left Europe economically prostrate, it is a crime against humanity that the suffering peoples of Europe are compelled to make even greater sacrifices than before the war for the maintenance of armies and navies. A radical reduction in armaments would be the most effective means of hastening the restoration of the economic equilibrium of the world.

No country has a greater interest than the United States in bringing about that result.

Such a step is both a moral and an economic necessity. Moral, because without it there can never be peace on earth. Economic, because as Professor Murray of Oxford recently wrote: "renewed competition in armaments means the wreck of civilization throughout the world."

In this view he is supported by General Pershing who said in New York at the close of 1920: "Unless some such move be made, we may well ask ourselves whether civilization does not really reach a point where it begins to destroy itself and whether we are thus doomed to go headlong down through destructive war and darkness to barbarism."

Permit me to address a special word to the young men in this congregation who so nobly fought in the great war.

The fortunes of this Republic lie in your hands. What the young men think today America will think tomorrow. Some of us are old. We are like the veterans who sit at the windows to see the troops march by. We can cheer, but our fighting days are over. Others of us have reached the midnoon. Maybe we have lost just a little of the keen zest of life. We face the subtle temptation to be content with things as they are; to follow the line of least resistance. Perhaps we are somewhat disillusioned; touched with the conservatism of middle life.

But you are gloriously young. You are the fine faith and superabundant energy of young manhood. Nothing is impossible to you. "I write unto you, young men," said St. John, "because ye are strong, and the word of God abideth in you and ye have overcome the wicked one." It was the appeal of age to the virile strength of youth.

You know what war really is. You have seen war in all its hideous nakedness. Its filth, its cold cruelty and its ruthless slaughter. You have seen the torn bodies of your comrades, the ruined cities and all the trail of destruction which follows the battle line.

In that conflict you did your duty. Now the larger task is yours to bring peace on earth. You fought to save the world for democracy. Democracy is not a political creed, but a human relationship. Its finest definition is this:

On earth peace among men of good will.

For that you fought and for that you must now labor and pray. Never lose sight of the vision, on Earth Peace. Though it tarry, wait for it, for it will surely come.

Earth at last a warless world. Every tiger madness muzzled. Every blazing passion killed. On Earth Peace.

Father Mabry finished speaking at noon and on the stroke of 12 called the congregation to the two minutes of silence observed all over the land. He then went to the altar, vested in purple cope, offered the Suffrages set forth by the Episcopal bishop of New York, the prayer for the departed, one for our country and one for the conference on the limitation of armaments.

Immediately after the two minutes of silence a firing squad from Company M fired a salute on the outside of the church and the bugler sounded "Taps."

The service in the church closed after a benediction by the congregation singing "O God, Our Help in Ages Past."

Among those present were Mayor Canfield, members of the common council, The American Legion, The American Legion Auxiliary, the Grand Army of the Republic, Tapen Post of the Sons of the G. A. R., Daughters of the American Revolution, Spanish War Veterans, Company M of the National Guard and other patriotic and civic organizations, besides the general public.

Novel Incident.

When the postmaster of East Greenville, Pa., emptied a second-class mail-pouch in the postoffice four chickens straggled forth from among the parcels. Recently, his explanation of their appearance is that the excessive heat hatched out the four chicks from a parcel-post consignment of eggs—Exchange.

Extortion Emphatically Rejected.

A tuberculous specialist in Hamburg, Germany, was sentenced to six months in prison, loss of citizenship for two years and to pay a fine of 15,000 marks for "extortion" because he had rendered too high bills to his patients.

Woman on Lunacy Board.

The first lunacy commission composed entirely of women was appointed recently by one of the courts in Philadelphia.

LEGION MAN IS LIFE SAVER

John L. Piazza, Office 4944, New York Police Force, Well Deserves His Medal.

Saving lives is almost a specialty with officer 4944 of the New York police force, former private and top sergeant of the Third Hundred and Twelfth Infantry, A. E. F., now a member of the General Lafayette Police post, American Legion, in New York City. Patrolman Piazza, John L., wears the Distinguished Service Cross.

It was in the Argentine in October, 1918, near Grand Pre, Piazza, advancing with his platoon, saw a badly wounded officer lying alone in No Man's Land, abandoned when his lines fell back to reform. On his stomach, Piazza crawled out to the spot, slung the wounded man over his shoulder and standing erect, carried him to safety with the shells whistling and exploding.

Discharged from the army, Patrolman Piazza resumed his beat in the far reaches of the borough of the Bronx. It wasn't long after that when he dashed up into a burning building, rescued an invalid woman and carried her to the street. Shortly after that he stopped a runaway horse and saved a group of women and children from injury. Officer 4944 is twenty-nine years old, married and the father of a son.

More than half of the post's members are fullblooded Indians. Wesley, the commander, is the village meat cutter. The remainder of the Indians, all members of the Commercial club, are engaged in business in the town. All are graduates of a government school and are better educated than the average American. Because he was a meat cutter, when Wesley enlisted in the United States navy they made him ship's cook on the U. S. S. Western Chief. In the membership of the post there is a Medal of Honor, a Medaille Militaire, a Croix de Guerre and a Victoria cross.

THEY'RE GOOD "LEGION MEN"

Washington State Newspaper Pair are Members of the Ex-Servicemen's Organizations.

The time honored tradition of violent feeling seemed to exist between the average hard-boiled city editor and the average soft-boiled reporter in the strange case of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reavis, members of Rainier-Noble post, the American Legion, and its Women's auxiliary, in Seattle, Wash.

Before the war Reavis was a city editor and Dora Deane, a Pacific coast woman newspaper writer, was one of his cub reporters. When Reavis went to war with the 41st Division cavalry, Miss Deane became city editor. Returning after the armistice, the ex-city editor sought to regain the editorial reins by marrying Miss Deane. Finding that as Mrs. Reavis she was the managing editor while he became a cub, Reavis forsook the name and became Associated Press correspondent in Seattle.

"She was pretty good as a cub reporter," Reavis says. "Not as managing editor, she is a wonder." Mrs. Reavis continues "as Dora Deane of the Seattle Daily Times."

INDIAN, LEGION POST BOSS

Elias Wesley and Sixteen Washington Buddies Also Control Town of White Swan.

Where his fathers once tried to resist the civilization of the white man, Elias Wesley, fullblood Indian, commander of an American Legion post, and sixteen of his Yakima "buddies" now control the prosperous town of White Swan, Wash.

More than half of the post's members are fullblooded Indians. Wesley, the commander, is the village meat cutter. The remainder of the Indians, all members of the Commercial club, are engaged in business in the town. All are graduates of a government school and are better educated than the average American. "GRAND OLD MAN" OF 137TH

Kansas Editor Recently Received Distinguished Service Cross for Valor in Action.

A newspaper editor who left off lambasting the Germans in his columns and went to lambast them in person is John H. O'Connor of the Winfield (Kan.) Courier, who recently received the Distinguished Service Cross for exceptional valor in action.

The "grand old man" of the One Hundred and Thirty-seventh Infantry regiment during its service in France.

Editor O'Connor ably commanded a battalion during the heaviest fighting and won the highest rank of lieutenant colonel. In September, 1918, in Montreuil Wood he received a nose pencil on the back of an old envelope, telling him he was the highest officer left in the regiment. Fortwith he assumed command of his own unit added on all other troops in the wood, organized a brigade front, beat off two Boche attacks and directed the advance on Ecoust.

Mr. O'Connor attended the first caucus of the American Legion in Paris in 1919 and was one of the newspaper men who drew the resolution giving the Legion its name.

FARM, CURE FOR SHOCK

Thousands of Veterans Have Recovered, According to Data Collected by American Legion.

The syndrome of drinking, nervous excitability and throbbers is a specific cure for shellshock. Of the thousands of World war veterans who turned to agriculture at the termination of hostilities, virtually all have recovered from the effects of shellshock. This is shown by a recent survey which is being studied by the national organization of the American Legion. The report likewise indicates that shellshock victims who settled in the cities have not yet regained their health.

The experiment of sending shellshock cases to the farms was tried with success in Canada, where more than 25,000 soldiers have taken refuge under the soldiers' re-employment act. The government has loaned more than $100,000,000 to these men, and their first year's crop was valued at approximately $24,000,000. Today the average soldier farmer, the survey indicates, is enjoying robust health and sound finances.

First Safety Razor.

The first safety razor was purely an ordinary straight razor with a detachable guard. It was made by Michael Thayer, of Sheffield, in 1868. Razors with retractable blades were not introduced until some time later.

Miss Anne Mathews, Register-elect, was the only woman in New York City to be elected for an office. Miss Mathews was born on Election Day, which was a forecast of the success she was to achieve in political life. Her office pays a salary of $12,000 per year.

WAR DEAD TRIBUTE

strains of "Nearer My God to Thee" sounded above the tomb of the soldier.

A hush fell over the audience as the body bearers once more took up their burden and began the short walk to the grave.

At a half past, to the solemn cadence of "Our Honored Dead" the journey was begun. First came the clergy, then the body and then the president and Mrs. Harding, the vice president and Mrs. Coolidge, cabinet officers: Foch, Beatty, Jacques, Kato, the world's greatest military and naval leaders.

Conspicuous among those who followed the casket into the short journey was Plenty Coon, chief of the Crow Indians, in his tribal regalia, feathers fluttering, as he tried to adjust his free stride to the measured cadence of the dirge.

At 7:15 the body was placed on the sarcophagus—home at last from its thousands of miles of travel. The band broke into "Lead Kindly Light" as the mourners ranged themselves about the simple bier.

In a voice quivering with emotion he did not attempt to hide, Chaplain Brent pronounced the committal.

The military and naval figures drew into the background while motherhood paid its tribute to the dead.

Secretary of War Weeks gave his arm to Mrs. R. E. Digney, president of the National American War Mothers, and escorted her to the grave where she deposited her simple wreath.

Mrs. Amelia Emma McCudden, England's most noted war mother, who gave three sons to her country, followed with a great massive wreath of blood red poppies.

The aged Crow chieftain then paid his tribute and placed on the tomb the famed coup stick of his tribe.

Three salvos of artillery boomed out across the quiet Potomac. Hardly had their reverberations died away when the clear, silver notes of the ever beautiful "Taps" floated on high.

And there on the crest of a little knoll with the magnificent vista of the capital spread out in panorama, they laid this nameless hero to his last long sleep.

OFFICER KUEHN STOPS RUNAWAY

Officer Gus Kuehn of the police department was dragged about fifty feet before he was able to stop a runaway horse. At the time Officer Kuehn was on his way down Broadway in the police car and as he approached Cedar street he noticed a team of horses running away up Broadway. Stopping the car he leaped out and grasped one of the horses by the bit. The runaway team were owned by Van Eppen & Hogan and was hitched to a truck loaded with coal. They had started to run away from the West Shore freight house.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Health Robinson. Henry Robinson of Ellenville announces the engagement of his daughter, Miss Barbara Murselles Robinson, to Roger McElhiney Smith of New York City.

Miss Robinson is a graduate of St. Mary's school and also of the Scudder school in New York. Mr. Smith attended Williams College and served as lieutenant in the 304th field artillery during the war. Lieut. Smith is a son of the Rev. Dr. George H. Smith and wife of Ellenville.

Munson-Budney. Miss Margaret M. Budney of Marlborough and Maurice Munson of New York were married in St. Mary's Church, Marlborough, on Tuesday at 12:30. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. James Hanley. The bride was charmingly attired in a dark blue traveling suit and wore a gold hat and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. She was attended by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Clifford Budney, who was attired in a blue suit, with a black and gold hat and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The best man was Clifford Budney, brother of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Munson left for California. They will reside in New York city.

Weiss-Halle. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence W. Halle announce the marriage of their daughter, Mary Louise, to Lieut. Paul John Weiss of this city. The ceremony was a very quiet affair and took place at Oakland, Cal., Thursday, October 6. During the war Lieut. Weiss was paymaster at the Naval Air Station at Dinner Key, and it was at this time the romance began and the young couple became engaged. Mrs. Weiss left Miami accompanied by her mother as far as Jacksonville, where she met her aunt, Mrs. J. D. Webster of Washington, D. C. and accompanied her to Oakland, where they were met by Lieut. Weiss, who has returned recently from Honolulu and is now stationed at the Island of California. The bride will make their home in Vallejo, Cal. It is with regret that friends of Mrs. Weiss learn that her marriage will take her away from Miami, where she has made her home for the past 11 years. Lieut. Paul J. Weiss is the son of Charles Weiss and a brother of Mrs. Thomas Mills of 154 West Pierpont street, this city.

Rotary Wheel on View. The Rotary wheel is on exhibition in a show window of the W. S. E. store, 410 Broadway, and at 11th and 12th streets.

Bound for Home or You. Today many of the business houses closed from 11:45 to 1:00 o'clock to observe the time of the signing of the armistice in the World War.

Coal Dealers Closed. Owing to the fact that today was Armistice Day all of the local retail coal dealers closed at noon.

No Market Today. By Telegram to The Freeman. New York, Nov. 11.—Due to the Armistice holiday today all of New York markets were closed.

Transport the Day Is On. The ferry transport has been drawn out on the dock at the Cornhill wharf to have her hull thoroughly overhauled. While undergoing repairs the ferry is being used in making on the Kingston-Rhinecliff route.

Armistice Day was observed in Kingston by the ringing of the fire and church bells at noon, followed by a two-minute period of silence and by a concert on the rhine of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer on Water street. The public schools were closed during the day, and the banks and post office department also observed the holiday.

According to reports from authoritative quarters in Washington, Eugene V. Louis, Socialist leader, who is serving a term of ten years in Atlanta Prison for obstructing the draft, may be a free man on Thanksgiving Day, through the president's executive clemency. It is also understood that what was previously serving terms for violating war-time laws, will be released under the president's order. There are about 110 of the war-time offenders in different prisons. The administration is said to take the view that the war is over and that most of the prisoners have paid adequately for the crimes of which they were convicted.

Summing. Nothing is known as yet as to whether or not a new election.

HERO'S MOTHER ONE OF 1,500

By Telegram to The Freeman. Washington, Nov. 11.—There are 1,500 mothers in different states of the union who are meditating today. Each of them doubtless wonders if the nameless hero who went to his final resting place today is her son. The records have shown about 2,500 Americans listed among the "unknown dead." "Statisticians, figuring the law of averages, said that at least 1,500 mothers of those heroes still are living.

So that many mothers might lay claim to the unknown dead soldier boy who laid his life on the altar for his country.

MIDDLETOWN SENT VETERAN ANYWAY

By Telegram to The Freeman. Washington, D. C., Nov. 12.—There was one marcher in the unknown soldier parade yesterday, a Grand Army of the Republic veteran, who came nearly, but not quite, to being a guest of the United States government. He was Thomas D. Collins of Middletown, N. Y. Mr. Collins is paying his first visit to Washington since 1865 when he led the Twentieth Brigade of general Sherman's army when it marched through Pennsylvania avenue to be mustered out of service.

He had won a medal for valor on the field of battle. Some time ago he received a letter from the war department inviting him to participate in the ceremonies today and offering to pay his railroad fare to Washington and his hotel expenses. Subsequently he received a second letter from the war department saying that it was unable for economy reasons to pay his expenses.

When Collins's fellow townsmen learned of the circumstances they took the disappointment to heart. A public fund was subscribed and Collins came to Washington, his second military appearance here in more than half a century.

PROMISE N. Y. MILK DELIVERIES

By Telegram to The Freeman. New York, Nov. 11.—Milk distributors today announced that house to house deliveries would be resumed tomorrow, following issuance of a supreme court injunction temporarily restraining striking employees from interfering with new men in Greater New York and Westchester county. The injunction restrains the strikers from damaging company property and from picketing or in any manner interfering with milk deliveries.

ARMISTICE DAY BALL TONIGHT

Armistice Day will be brought to a close this evening with the American Legion ball at the state armory. There will be an interesting program rendered for those who do not dance. The dance music will be furnished by Raife's orchestra.

FOCH HERE THIRD ARMISTICE DAY

By Telegram to The Freeman. Washington, Nov. 11.—Hostilities in the World War ended at 11 a. m. three years ago today. The third anniversary of the cessation of fighting finds all America pouring from the depths of her heart, her tenderest tribute to her unknown heroes. It is a signal honor to America that Marshal Foch, generalissimo of the Allied armies, who drafted the armistice terms for Germany three years ago today, participated in the honors to America's unknown warrior at Arlington cemetery today.

PORT EWEN. Port Ewen, Nov. 11.—Merritt Every of the Broadway Garage spent Thursday in New York city.

Mrs. C. Cole of Ulster Park spent Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. C. Beaver on Broadway.

William New of Brooklyn, N. Y. was a recent guest of his friend, George V. Elsworth, on Broadway.

Wieber and Walter of Kingston are installing a pipeless heater in the house of Mrs. E. A. D. Potter on Stout avenue.

May Suppress Farrar Charges. By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, Nov. 11.—The sensational charges which Geraldine Farrar, the opera singer, has brought against her actor husband Lou Tellegen, in a suit for divorce, may never become public. The papers have been sealed and it was reported today that the couple will reach a separation agreement out of court.

A Chauffeurs' Examination. The state department will hold a chauffeurs' examination at the city hall November 17, at 9:30 o'clock that morning.

These broadened crepes come in many colors, fuchsia, lavender, blue, orange, emerald green, silver gray and American beauty, being among the most noticeable.

Crinon and crepe de chine and charmeuse are also greatly favored for evening modes.

For the street, the light weight serge, tricotine, and the new weaves of Anvers are seen.

Beards are a most favored method of frock ornamentation this fall. They are used to outline many a design, while jet and silver bangles produce striking effects.

Elaborate embroideries showing an Egyptian, Japanese or Spanish influence brighten up many a number of colored dresses, red and green being used on navy, with vivid red on black. Self colored embroideries are also popular.

Finer because of the crisis for things Spanish, is featured on both wraps and gowns. Monkey fur is another trimming which carries out the Spanish motif.

Brads are used lavishly. Fine narrow sequins and wide ones on the order of Herbolan are employed to form all sorts of geometric designs, squares, diamonds and lozenges. Fur, too besides being put on as handbags, make their appearance as fur-trimmed stripes and dots, male or female often being used in this way.

Jolly Striking Bag. To make the striking bag, or jolly bag as it is often called, choose either flannel or cheviot cloth, or even a sugar sack, about three-quarters of a yard square. Fold the lower edge to the left-hand side so it forms a corner, and stitch together firmly. Add a couple of tapes to hang up the bag when straining the juice from fruit pulp.

For a Bralette. Little hair ornaments for a bralette—women are beginning to wear with a single large pearl, one placed at the back of the hair and two more worn high in the culture and with a single large pearl, one placed at the side.

Remember Don't Anxiously Last. In buying new bralette don't have too many every pair in this country is dependent on a value of three or four dollars. These are clearly not the bralette you want, unless you are a bralette and a bralette.

LENGTH OF SKIRTS

Designers Do Not Agree on Big Question of the Day.

Safe Plan is for Women to Do as They Please as to Style of Garment.

Even the men are asking, "How will skirts be this autumn?" according to fashion writers. A student of fashion becomes a popular dinner guest for the moment, because she can answer the all-absorbing question. The fact is that she knows there is nothing certain about the length of skirts. Force a confession from her, and it will run something like this:

"One authority has one opinion, and the very next fashion column, whose word is supposed to be law, will tell an entirely different story. And each one of them says his little say with all the faith in the world that it is the one and only answer."

From Paris come conflicting dispatches. This designer's dresses are short, reaching the knees. That one makes dresses with skirts that touch the ground. Still another declares, and proves her words by her creations, that medium-length skirts will be the only possible solution.

The only safe course, then, for the worried ones to pursue is to do as

A criss-cross pattern of slashes trims this satin coat for late autumn wear. A broad oriental sash is the sole fastening.

CARE OF NEW SILK HOSIERY

Stockings of the Finest Quality Should Be Carefully Washed as Soon as Taken Off.

The way you treat silk stockings has a lot more to do with the way they wear than has their original price—usually. Sometimes, of course, they are just such a poor quality that they aren't worth taking care of. But usually care tells more with silk stockings than it does with almost anything else.

To begin with never let silk stockings lie soiled for a week. They set, once moisture has permeated them. The thing to do is to wash them out as soon as you take them off. Of course, this is usually too much trouble. Nevertheless, it is the thing to do. And, of course, they shouldn't be worn more than a day at a time—no more than a day without washing, that means.

FASHION FANCIES FOR FALL

Crepe Broadened in Velours Promises to Be Fashionable for Evening Wear—Beads in Favor.

A fabric which promises to become popular for evening wear is crepe broadened in velours. Little or no trimming is required as the pattern of this fabric is a trimming in itself. One particularly lovely design is a fern leaf, another shows chrysanthemums in all their beauty.

These broadened crepes come in many colors, fuchsia, lavender, blue, orange, emerald green, silver gray and American beauty, being among the most noticeable.

Crinon and crepe de chine and charmeuse are also greatly favored for evening modes.

Concrete of Cinder.
Some time ago some walls made of concrete were erected at Columbia university, and since then they have been subjected to five four hour tests by fire, when the average temperature reached was 1,200 degrees Fahrenheit. At the end of each test a stream of water was applied for ten minutes while the wall was hot. Now, standing these tests, the walls, for all practical purposes, are as good as when erected, and the permeability of coal and fine material in such cases appear to have very little effect on their fire resisting qualities. The pieces of coal which were put in the surface of these walls were burned to ash, and the ash remained in place and acted as non-conductor of heat. Several portions of these walls were found within two hours of the surface.

1,000,000 TRAIN FOR BUSINESS

Schools and Colleges Are Specializing in Foreign Trade.

BANKERS ARE HELPING OUT

Manufacturers and Merchants Assist in Making Curricula Practical—Ten Year Course is Offered, and One Big Institution Has Nearly 9,000 Such Students Enrolled—Federal Bureau of Education Gives Out Some Interesting Information.

More than 1,000,000 young men and women are seeking special training for foreign trade and general business careers in public and private schools and colleges throughout the United States, according to reports to the federal bureau of education.

Preparation for business life through carefully prepared courses of study in educational institutions specializing in the work is appealing more each year to individuals who hope to achieve lasting success, according to officials of the federal bureau. The number who attend business schools and colleges is increasing at the rate of 25,000 students a year.

Training for Business. Colleges and schools in all parts of the country are extending their courses to be of greater service in preparation of students for business life. Bankers, manufacturers and men whose importance is large in business circles are lending their assistance to the federal government and to individual institutions to make the courses more practical.

Training in business is being given in two-thirds of the state colleges and universities, according to the reports to the bureau of education. These state institutions are those which have established special schools giving training exclusively in industrial and business pursuits. The number of such special schools is increasing each year.

With the facilities already in existence it now is possible for a young man or woman to specialize in business training immediately after leaving the eighth grade and to continue the work through college. That amounts to eight years of specialized training for commercial and manufacturing pursuits and is equal to that accorded in the professions like medicine and law.

Foreign trade offers unusual opportunities for success in all its phases during the next five or six years in the foreign trade field, it is believed. The United States, with its enormous war-born merchant marine, is on the road to becoming the world's greatest maritime nation.

In Public Schools. Nearly 8,000 public schools, exclusive of state universities, are giving special courses in industrial and commercial subjects. A very large majority of them are organized to teach no other branch of work. Their enrollment is about 800,000, according to reports to the bureau of education. Another group of 300,000 students is at work in private schools and institutions, while the number attending business schools maintained by corporations and religious organizations is about 400,000.

Colleges offering advanced business courses have an enrollment totalling 40,000. The enrollment is increasing each month.

Elementary courses are offered by public schools. Through business high schools students who cannot attend college are offered the opportunity to go to work well equipped. By means of the schools maintained by private individuals and by big concerns these same students can continue their studies at night and win advancement while gaining at first hand knowledge of conditions in the business world.

Nine Thousand in One College.

Colleges offering training in accountancy and factory administration are attracting thousands of students in New York, Philadelphia and Boston. One New York institution now has nearly 8,000 students enrolled in business courses, another has 5,000 and a third, 2,000.

The growth of the school specializing in business training is shown by the fact that five years ago the number of students taking such subjects in colleges did not exceed 15,000. Now three colleges in New York alone have an enrollment of more than that number.

The total of all students attending universities giving business courses has increased 300 per cent in five years, it is pointed out.

Dr. A. S. Swiggett of the bureau of education is chairman of a committee of fifteen to win co-operation of practical business men in encouraging extension of business training. Men of large affairs in all sections of the United States are enrolled on an advisory committee of 100.

Use Special Course.

The committee devised for students of foreign trade a special course now being used in several large colleges. This course would require two years to complete for the student beginning it just after leaving the grade schools. It includes special training in languages, geography, social customs and manners, as well as practical drill in actual problems of foreign trade. The committee explained:

"The course is intended to fit the American going into foreign trade to compete on an equal plane with the trained men of Europe. Too often in the past the American business man has found it impossible to do a large business abroad because he knew little of his customers except their business needs. We found it impossible to gain and hold their interest and friendship in a business way because he did not know them as individuals. We are trying to turn out a different class of men who will be able to do business abroad."

rest at home in the unfamiliar atmosphere. Such a business man must have a very large store of general information. He must be able to talk to customers about things aside from his business and his wares."

The two-year course is being revised on the basis of its actual trial for the last several months. Meanwhile the bureau of education is doing its utmost to encourage the extension of business courses in institutions of learning in all sections of the United States.

KEEP CLOSE WATCH TO KEEP DREAD TYPHUS OUT

TIES VICTIM IN BATHTUB

Memphis Hotel Burglar Robs New Yorker of $3,500.

J. Q. Eiers, New York salesman and father of Walter Eiers, actor, was discovered in the bathtub of his room at the Hotel Gayoso in Memphis, Tenn., with his foot tied to the faucet of the tub, where he had been placed, he told detectives, by an intruder who entered his room and robbed him of $300 in cash and diamonds valued at approximately $5,500.

The discovery was made by other guests of the hotel who responded to Eiers' calls for help. The burglar struck Eiers over the head but his injuries were not serious.

Eiers told detectives that he was sitting in his room writing letters when some one knocked at his door. The door was unlocked so Eiers called to the visitor to enter. As he turned about in his chair a revolver was thrust at him, he said.

ISLANDERS QUIT TATTOOING

There is only one "tatuara" (master tattooer) left in the Marquesas islands, where a generation ago they were the most numerous and skillful of all such artisans, says Dr. Ralph Linton, assistant in archeology at the Bishop museum, Honolulu, who has returned after ten months of investigation and research in the South seas.

Of all the things he saw while in the Marquesas, the marvelous tattooing displayed by the natives was one of the most interesting.

The men were formerly tattooed all over the body, even inside the nostrils and on the scalp, and the hair was shaved off in patches to reveal the artistic work.

FOR FEMALES OVER SIXTEEN

"The End of the Road" is a "movie" of unusual merit and no woman or girl over 16, say public health authorities, should miss seeing it. It will be shown Saturday, November 12, at 2:20 p. m., in the Orpheum Theater at Saugerties, and the admission is free.

Besides an exceptionally interesting story in which noted screen stars take the leading parts, this picture brings out points on "How to Keep Well and Fit" that will be of great benefit to every woman. Our health is all important and we should not miss any opportunity to learn more about how to keep it.

Most of us are more interested in knowing how to keep well than we used to be, but medical science has developed very rapidly in the past few years and are we in any way keeping up with its progress? In matters of general public health such as care of common contagious diseases, prevention of epidemics and relationship between home and civic sanitation and public health. Even though efforts in this direction have been worth while, through false modesty or ignorance in some cases one of the greatest menaces to health, mental, moral and physical has not been touched upon.

It is in order that we may know more about "Keeping Fit" that this health movie will be shown on Saturday afternoon in the Saugerties Orpheum Theater under the direction of the Saugerties Home Bureau and the state department of health.

STALE BLOOD BLURS LIVING

Gude's Pepto-Mangan Revives the Blood to Healthy State.

Stale blood blurs living. It dulls the love for pleasure, and weakens the spirit. Thoughts sink into an unredeemed dreaminess that no good-luck of the will can dispel. Where there was thrilling excitement, there is only an aching sensation of fatigue.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan taken regularly for a while puts a check to the debilitating effects of this, watery blood. It supplies the blood with red corpuscles, steps it up to its normal, rich redness. Then it is that the pleasures of rhythmic living return. The smouldering glow of life warms and brightens so that the pleasant sensations of eating, sleeping, walking in the golden sunshine, breathing deep the health-giving air, again become thrilling and full of delight.

TRYING TO BREAK GORDON WILL

West Park Spinsster Was of Sound Mind, Declare Her Physicians and Friends—Her Ancestors' Atlantic Exiles

The will of a descendant of one of the exiles from Acadia, the land of Exile, is being contested in the Eastern County Surrogate's Court. Surrogate Kaufman on Wednesday and Thursday, hearing the contest over the will of Miss Gordon of West Park, in the town of Esopus, in this county. A touch of pathetic romance was imparted to the case by the testimony of Professor Jean Bracy, for twenty-seven years professor of modern languages at Vassar College, and for over forty years an intimate friend of Miss Gordon. He testified that Miss Gordon was descended from one of those unfortunate exiles from Acadia whose sufferings found the theme of Longfellow's great poem of "Evangeline."

The professor, who now is one of the recipients of the Carnegie Foundation, is living at Kenne, New Hampshire, where he is engaged in writing a history of the French Canadians, which almost is ready for publication.

He testified to his long acquaintance with Miss Gordon, to his frequent visits to her beautiful home on the banks of the Hudson, to his many conversations with her upon a great variety of topics. He said that she was interested in the local Catholic Church of West Park, to which she bequeathed a half acre of land adjoining the church property, $5,000 in money, and $2,000 additional to assist in building a parsonage upon the lot she devised, because her mother, who originally was a strong French Protestant, had become a strong adherent of the Catholic denomination, and that the gift to the church was really a tribute by Miss Gordon to her mother's memory. Also he said that Miss Gordon's sister was the God-mother of Elton Vernon Lomer, father of Montreal, to whom $5,000 was bequeathed; that the bequest to Paul Bachoff of $20,000 unquestionably was, as stated by Miss Gordon, in her will, in recognition of his faithful services, because he had been in the employ of the Gordon family for over twenty years, and Miss Gordon frequently had spoken to him of her high regard for his loyalty and ability. Also Professor Bracy added that he frequently had talked with Miss Gordon relative to the Salvation Army, which she made her residuary legatee, and of the work of which among the poor and needy she had talked to him most eloquently. When asked if she had spoken to him about those of her relatives not mentioned in the will, he said yes, but that towards them she had a deep aversion predicated upon the attitude they had taken over the distribution of her father's estate, in which her brother had become estranged from the rest of the family.

Another witness was the Reverend Mr. Stimson, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Pottstown, Pennsylvania, who for over twenty-five years had been an intimate friend of Miss Gordon. He had been a visitor at the beautiful home of Frothingham Adams on the Hudson a quarter of a mile below Miss Gordon's home, when he was a student in the Theological Seminary, and was a frequent visitor at the Gordon house. He last visited Miss Gordon a short time previous to her death. Both Professor Bracy and Mr. Stimson testified that she was in all respects perfectly rational; a refined, educated, cultivated woman. Miss Pratt, another lifelong friend of Miss Gordon, gave similar testimony as to her soundness of mind, as did Paul Dutton of this city, and Miss Kniffin, who had been a maid in Miss Gordon's employ.

Dr. George Freator, who was the attending physician of Miss Gordon for some months before her death,

SEASONABLE IDEAS.

For the waffle lover this will be a piece de resistance, an every one knows how delicious a tender, crisp waffle is. Never serve a hot sirup with waffles, as it tends to soften and destroy their crispness.

Rich Waffles.—Add the yolks of three eggs to two cupsful of cream, one-quarter of a cupful of sugar, two cupsful of flour, sifted with two teaspoonsful of baking powder and one-quarter of a teaspoonful of salt. Stir to a smooth batter, then fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Cook on a hot, well greased waffle iron and sprinkle with powdered sugar before serving.

Butterscotch Sauce.—Melt two tablespoonsful of browned flour, stir to a paste, then add three-quarters of a cupful of water and cook until smooth like an ordinary sauce. Lastly, add one-quarter of a cupful of molasses, one tablespoonful of vinegar and one cupful of brown sugar, and let boil up once.

Spiced Peaches.—Use seven pounds of fruit to five pounds of sugar, with an ounce each of cinnamon and cloves tied loosely in a small bag; add one pint of water and one pint of vinegar. When boiling hot drop in the peaches a few at a time, and cook until they are thoroughly scalded. Pour the boiling hot sirup over them after the can is full. Seal as usual.

Preserved Figs.—Where the fresh fig is to be obtained they make a delicious preserve. Pour three quarts of boiling water over three quarts of figs, which have been sprinkled with one-half cupful of baking soda. Let stand ten minutes, then rinse the figs well with water running through them in a colander. Boil two pounds of sugar in three pints of water ten minutes, add the figs, cover closely and cook slowly until the figs are clear and tender. This may take two hours and the quantity of water should not be allowed to become too much reduced. When the figs are clear, boil down the sirup until heavy. Pour over and seal. The end of two oranges added to the figs improves the flavor, some think. Spiced figs may be prepared as are spiced peaches.

PRIMITIVE LIVING IN HAITI

Natives Take No Pride in Appearance of Their Homes or Hamlets Where They Live.

All Haitian towns have a close family resemblance. There is always a big, brown, bare, dusty central place, with a tiny bandstand with steps painted in the national colors and surmounted by a single royal palm tree, called the "patie." From this radiate wide, right-angle dirt streets lined by low houses, some of plastered mud, a few whitewashed, many of split palm trunks, most of them of tache, nearly all with earth floors, all, except the few covered with corrugated iron in the center of town being roofed with thatch. Some have narrow sapling-pillared porches paved with little cobblestones, these sometimes also whitewashed; and where houses are missing are broken hedges of organ cactus on which hang drying rags of clothing. Facing the place is a more or less ruined church, farther off a large open market-place, with perhaps a few ragged thatched-roof shelters from the sun. Then there is sure to be a spick-and-span gendarmerie, with large numbers of docile prisoners and proud black gendarmes, perhaps a group of marines, or at any rate of their native prototypes, here and there stalking through the dusty streets, ignoring the respectful greetings of their tawny black populace squatted in their doorways or on their dirt floors. Little fagot fires on the ground behind or beside the huts, a well-worn path down to the river, and an indefinable scent of the tropics and black humanity living in primitive conditions complete the picture. Men who have seen both assert that a Congo village is a paradise compared with a Haitian hamlet. —Harry A. Frank in "Roaming Through the West Indies."

Pumping Plant for the Airplane.
Herr Fokker's excellent airplanes are too well known to require elaboration here. However, we now in looking over the plans of his latest creation, the "Fokker F-III," a passenger-carrying monoplane, that he has made use of a tiny power-driven pump which serves to transfer gasoline from the usual supply drums to the airplane tanks. The pump is mounted near the port side of the engine housing. From this pump a length of rubber tubing, normally coiled up inside the engine housing, can be taken outside the machine and its free end inserted in a gasoline can or drum. A few strokes of the pump soon transfers the gasoline to the airplane tank, and the pump is ready for the next can or drum, and so on. The entire operation of filling the airplane's tanks—and airplanes of such proportions seem to have an insatiable appetite for fuel—can be accomplished by one man in a few minutes, and there is no stopping over and spilling the gasoline all over the machine.—Scientific American.

Scarcity of Hurricanes.
No undue alarm should be occasioned on the part of public regarding the early appearance of hurricanes from the West Indies this year, declares the United States weather bureau. Referring to the recent storms in the Caribbean sea and the Gulf of Mexico, officials of the bureau state that although it is unusual to experience hurricanes in the month of June, the records of the bureau do not show that early storms of this character signify an increase in activity in the later months of the hurricane season.

A record of all the West India hurricanes that have been reported since the first voyage of Columbus is on file in the marine division of the weather bureau, and contains a great deal of interesting, if tragic, information. From this record it appears that hurricanes have occurred in June in only eight years during the last century. Only one of these, 1866, was marked by a greater than average number of storms for the remaining months.

The only kind of wild animals in the world of which a yearly census is taken are the fur seals of the Pribilof Islands, in the Bering of where they numbered between 200,000 and 300,000, but they were decreasing so rapidly for many years that the seal was more than a quarter diminished on the islands. Now they are protected by international agreement, and the herd is increasing at a rapid rate every year just like the herds of sheep.
